

Were printed throughout the country. The wedding was one of the early instances of the foreign nobleman capturing the American heiress, and despite the brilliant ceremonies of a similar nature that have taken place since, it is still vivid in the memories of those who attended it.

From that time the Castellanes have been almost constantly in the public prints, as the result of the count's extravagances, quarrels or political ambitions.

The Castellanes have three children, George, Boni, and Jay, the last named being the youngest and named after the father of the countess.

When the couple left this country, the countess, who was then in her eighteenth year, had a share of the Jay Gould estate of $18,000,000, which yielded her an income of over $600,000 a year. This looked enormous to every one except the count, but it became evident within a few months that it intended to show how to live up to the income.

Copied Grand Trianon.

There wasn't a house in Paris that was anything like what he had wanted. Nothing would do him but a copy of the Grand Trianon at Versailles, so for several years he bent himself to the task of producing the copy. He sought palaces to cut out the mural decorations and install them in his Paris mansion, and he ransacked the Continent for the costliest art treasures to furnish his palace. He built it on the Bois de Boulogne. While he was ransacking the Continent for art treasures, he was also ransacking the Continent for money. Paris laughed and the Gauls frowned.

He spent a great fortune on the marble foundation alone, and he was so afraid that the year might pile up before he could spend it that he offered to buy almost everything that was offered to him in the art markets. Finally he was spending more than the $18,000,000 he had, and friends of the Castellanes began to talk about their debts.

While the palace was being constructed the count decided to have in it an auditorium in which he could seat hundreds of guests at a dinner. Just about this time the first talk of separation between him and the countess was heard, because Wall Street heard rumor that he was going to dump a great load of Missouri Pacific on the market.

Creditors Like Wolves.

Within a couple of years the art dealers and money lenders of Europe learned that the Castellane fortune, instead of being inexhaustible, was about to be exhausted, and that the American Count might not help out their French brother-in-law if he did not retrench. That precipitated suits, and suddenly the gay little count, with his wonderful mansion on his hands, found himself pursued by creditors who were as savage as a pack of wolves. They didn't want any more promises. They wanted cold, hard cash, and if he couldn't find it for them they would find it by going to the courts.

The count had made the chamber of deputies in Paris, and he had been thought resented around the world when he was suddenly accused of buying his election and was thrown out of the chamber.

In 1906, five years after the marriage, the Gauls found out that the count was in debt to just about every creditor who could be determined, but it was estimated that he had spent $7,000,000 in that time, and an additional $10,000,000. Just to show that he wanted to pay, he sold at auction the ancestral Castellane estate, the Chateau du Marais, but the sale netted only a drop in the waiting bucket. Then the count called on the Gauls again, and they helped him out.

Income Cut Two-thirds.

Meanwhile, claims aggregating $4,000,000 were lumped by the creditors, and Anton Dittmar, as assignee of Ascher Wertheimer, a London art dealer, began an action for payment, calling on the supreme court in this city to prevent the payment of any more money from the Gould trust fund to the countess until the claims were paid. After the bitterest kind of litigation an arrangement was made whereby all of the debts were acknowledged and yearly payments of five per cent interest were begun, while the income of the countess was cut down to $200,000 a year. The count moaned, but he had to stand it.

Several years ago the countess came to New York to visit her sister, bringing her two elder children with her. Apparently they had had a long talk about their mother's country, for when the ship was at quarantine one of them pointed to the American flag and asked what flag it was.

Live More Modestly.

On their recent yachting trips the Castellanes have had a hired yacht instead of the beautiful ocean greyhound they once owned, and the entertainments at the Paris palace have been few and far between. For some time many rumors have been trying to make a strong friend of the King of Portugal, and he gave one memorable fete in honor of that monarch that made Paris gasp. It is said that he spent practically a year's income on the night, and considered it well spent.

The count has also published a book on the foreign politics of France, containing his own speeches. In it he deplored the political tendencies of his country.

It was learned here today that the recent hurried trip abroad of Frank J. Gould, brother of the countess, was in answer to a summons from the latter.

Mrs. Gould accompanied her husband, her two infant children in the care of Miss Helen Gould at Miss Gould's country home, "Lindhurst," at Irvington-on-Hudson.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Gould went directly to Paris, where it is believed they now with the countess, advising and consoling her in her trouble.

KENTUCKY REPUBLICAN CLUB PLANS BIG NIGHT

At a meeting of the Kentucky Republican Club at its quarters, 623 Louisiana avenue tonight, Harry Giovannoli, chief of the state division of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, will deliver an address on "Kentucky Journalism." Mr. Giovannoli will speak of "Caleb Powers, the Man and His Case," Capt. K. J. Hampton, who has just returned from the Philippines, is expected to give an interesting description of life in the Orient.

YOUTH SHOOTS HIMSELF MIMICKING STAGE VILLAIN

NEWARK, Feb. 3.—With a revolver he didn't know was loaded, Wendel Houscher tried to illustrate to his roommate, Carl Ritter, how a desperado villain in a melodrama had been had committed suicide.

The scene was more realistic than the young actor had intended and is likely to have a tragic sequel, for when he placed the muzzle of the weapon to his neck and pulled the trigger there was a flash and a report and he fell with a bullet in his body.

He was taken to St. James' Hospital. There it was found the bullet had passed downward and perhaps had penetrated the right lung.

ENDEAVORERS HOLD BIG JUNIOR RALLY

Feature Event of Convention in Progress Here.

INTERESTING ADDRESSES

William Shaw, of Boston, to Tell of a Quarter Century of Christian Endeavor.

The Junior rally held this afternoon in the First Congregational Church marked the third event of the District of Columbia Christian Endeavor Convention, now in session in this city. Miss Ardell Payne, superintendent of the junior department, presided.

The rally was opened with a strong service after which the Rev. Frederick D. Power, pastor of the Vermont Avenue Christian Church, read the Scriptures and led in prayer. Following the prayers Mrs. D. E. Wiber told of the work of the junior societies.

Eckington Juniors.

The Eckington Presbyterian Juniors went through the flag drill, and William Shaw, of Boston, made an address. After singing and roll call of societies adjournment was taken until tonight, when all will attend a dinner in the new building of the Y. M. C. A., over which Commissioner Henry B. Macfarland will preside.

After dinner William Shaw, of Boston, treasurer of the World's Christian Endeavor Union will make a short address, taking as his subject, "A Quarter Century of Christian Endeavor."

From 5:30 to 6 o'clock an informal reception will be held in the parlors of the Y. M. C. A. This afternoon a fellowship mass meeting will be held at the First Congregational Church, which will be presided over by the Rev. F. D. Power, trustee of the United Society of Christian Endeavor.

The Opening Rally.

The opening rally of the convention was held in St. Paul's English Lutheran Church yesterday afternoon.

President Hermon C. Metcalf presiding. A song service was conducted by James P. McCurdy, assisted by the organists, Charles S. Lyver, then followed a prayer, which was preceded by an address of President Metcalf. The latter spoke upon the objects of the society, of the good accomplished in the past, and the growing strength, which every day makes them more useful.

After a song service, Rev. Albert E. Evans, D. D., pastor of the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, made a short address. Following Dr. Evans' talk a half hour was devoted to the waiting bucket. Then the count called on the Gauls again, and they helped him out.

Officers of Convention.

The officers of the convention are as follows: President, Hermon C. Metcalf; first vice president, H. Clyde Grimes; second vice president, Joseph H. Leeds; third vice president, Miss Alice M. Meynes; secretary, Amos M. Piper; assistant secretary, Leonard F. Ruoff; treasurer, Edward J. Tarrington.

Superintendents of departments—Extension, Owen P. Keller; Junior, Miss Ardell Payne; Young Men, J. C. Grimes; Leeds; press, James M. Fickens; citizenship, John G. Rockwood.

Festival of Praise.

A festival of praise was held last night in Convention Hall when a large chorus under the direction of Percy S. Foster with Mrs. Nellie Wilson Shirreff, soprano, and Miss Nellie Grimes, bass, formally opened the convention.

The music used in last night's program was composed by the Rev. Carey Bonner, of London, for the Christian Endeavor convention in Baltimore last year. In addition to the regular song service the chorus interpolated the hymns written for the Christian Endeavor Societies by the late Secretary of State, John Hay.

A large audience attended the song service. It was made up largely of District branches of the society, and their friends. The work of the chorus was in every way creditable and the chorus interpolated the hymns written for the Christian Endeavor Societies by the late Secretary of State, John Hay.

WAITS THIRTY YEARS TO GET A DIVORCE

OMAHA, Feb. 3.—After keeping a pledge for more than thirty years that she would not seek a divorce until her three children were married, Mrs. Mary A. Hoskins today filed suit for divorce from Edson D. Hoskins.

Ever since the birth of her first born, declares Mrs. Hoskins, her husband has treated her shamefully, contributing nothing to the support of the family.

For the sake of her children she has submitted to the complaint to his brutal tactics and cuffs. By her own labor she has reared the children, doing millinery and dressmaking, and has succeeded in saving enough to buy two houses.

The youngest child was married yesterday, and today Mrs. Hoskins asked the court to relieve her from the galling bonds of matrimony and to give her absolute possession of the property she has earned.

DEATH RECORD.

The following deaths were reported at the Health Department within the past twenty-four hours:

Florence Butler, 28 years; Francis Colbert, 4 years; Margaret Taylor, 4 years; Philip W. Delano, 28 years; Mary E. Glass, 4 years; Ed Gaffield, 50 years; William W. Hamilton, 27 years; Charlotte M. Holthaus, 29 years; Fee Jetz, 3 years; Charles M. Kanouse, 50 years; Nellie E. Linkins, 31 years; Herbert J. McKee, 33 years; Mary E. O'Neil, 1 year; Randolph Rice, 40 years; Claude Rosenbrot, 1 year; Martin Schubert, 61 years.

BUILDING OPERATIONS ACTIVE.

Building operations have been very active in the West End during the past four months. Robert H. Melton has in course of construction a row of twelve two-story apartment houses on the west side of Avon place, between R street and Cambridge place northwest, to cost about $40,000. Thomas M. Talbot has just completed the construction of four two-story dwellings on the south side of Prospect avenue, between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth streets northwest, which cost $20,000. Joseph Fearson is building six two-story bay window brick dwellings on the north side of P street, between Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth streets northwest, to cost $30,000, and a three story apartment house is now in course of construction on the east side of Thirtieth street, just north of Q street.

FIRST BAPTIST COMPLETED.

The new First Baptist Church, at the corner of Twenty-seventh and Dumbarton avenue northwest, has been completed by Contractor Rezin W. Darby. The building cost nearly $12,000. During the building operations the congregation has been holding services in the Auditor hall at the southeast corner of Twenty-eighth and Dumbarton avenue northwest.

CITIZENS' ASSOCIATION TO MEET.

The Georgetown Citizens' Association, which has heretofore held meetings on the first Monday of every month, will in the future meet on the evening of the first Wednesday of each month, the next meeting to be held February 8, at Co-operative Hall, 1325 Thirty-second street northwest.

BROOKLAND CITIZENS' ASSOCIATION MEETING

Owing to the intense cold only a few members of the Brookland Citizens' Association attended the regular monthly meeting which was held in the Town Hall last night with President Kinnam in the chair. Reports were received from the street and light committee, the committee on health, fire and police, and railroads.

It was announced that the association would do everything possible to assist in making an appropriation for a great northeast intersecting sewer. The project has been under advisement for many months. The members of the association were urged to exert every effort to help along the speedy passage of the bill providing for the construction of the sewer.

Members of the organization were much gratified to learn that the bill for the opening of Monroe street, from Seventh to Eleventh streets, which had been referred to the Commissioner by the House District Committee. It is thought the measure will be favorably acted upon within the near future. The delay thus far is said to have been caused by the refusal of the Suction Order board to allow the property to be cut through in order to complete the thoroughfare. This obstacle has been overcome.

The committee on car service reported that the service on the G street line had been improved. The committee on the Maryland branch.

HYDRANTS FROZEN AND FOUR BUILDINGS BURN

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—A fire that swept four buildings, one a hotel, and drove the occupants thinly clad and shivering into the zero weather, started today at Springfield avenue and Merrick road, near Jamaica, L. I.

The firemen from Jamaica were powerless, as nearly all the hydrants were frozen.

In Masspe, not far away, two buildings were burned, and a man was suffocated to death by smoke.

Father Holly has recently returned from several months of service on the pontifical commission in Rome. He is said to be the foremost authority in America on the subject of Gregorian chant.

DAN SCANLON'S KISSES VALUED AT $144.65

The kisses and caresses Daniel Scanlon is said to have given and received from Sarah Agnes Galvin cost him $144.65, in the lump sum, or at the rate of $12.05 a week during the time he is said to have basked in the sunshine of her smiles.

Miss Galvin, in a recent breach of promise trial, said Mr. Scanlon proposed marriage to her, and that the suggestion was agreeable to her. Mr. Scanlon, however, denied the assertion, and refused to enter into a marriage contract with her.

Through her counsel, Attorneys O'Shea and Calvert, Miss Galvin appealed to the local courts for bail in the form of $50,000 as damages for her lacerated heart.

The jury which heard the testimony in the case awarded Miss Galvin $100 as damages, and assessed the costs of the trial, which amounted to $44.65, against Mr. Scanlon. Today judgment for the amount of damages and costs were entered against him.
